

The Aplomado Falcon

To begin, do you like endangered animals a lot? You're lucky to read this if you do. My animal is a Northern Aplomado Falcon.

The Northern Aplomado Falcons appearance is steel and gray black. It has markings on the top of its head and around its eyes, It has black chest and a black sash. They usually travel in pairs.

A Northern Aplomado Falcons habitat, is they live in Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas. In Texas they live in El Paso, and Corpus Christi. A Northern Aplomado Falcon does not make nests but they do take them from other birds.

A Northern Aplomado Falcons predator and prey are they eat other birds like Pigeons and Doves. Its most dangerous predator is humans. A Northern Aplomado Falcons conservation status is Endangered. This bird is about 38-43 cm long.

I loved teaching about the Northern Aplomado Falcon and will learn and teach about other animals .Tell me if you liked the Northern Aplomado Falcon. If you do go to Endangered.org, and donate money to help this animal. I hope you liked my personal essay.

Sources:

Endangered.org

Kidsnationalgeographic.com