

Wolves (Canis lupus)

These incredible canines have always stood out to me. The way they howl to communicate. How they work together, and how they help a hurt pack member. Unfortunately, not everyone sees them the way I do. Some people hunt them for sport, which is horrible. Every animal deserves to live. At one point red wolves were hunted so much that their population was down to about 300. My greatest wish is for wolves to be safe from anything that could harm them, and I hope they will be around for many more years.